Yoga enlightens...

Taught in dark

by CLAUDIA BUCK

Spread out in an array in the darkened room, the 18 members of the Yoga Co-op lie on mats, blankets or rugs awaiting the beginning of their weekly yoga exercises. At their center burn two candles and incense.

Under the instruction of Stuart Watts, originator of the co-op and a practicing yoga for eight years, these yoga enthusiasts meet every Thursday night at 7 p.m. in Ag Ed Rm. 228. Watts, a dietetics major, calls the co-op a "gathering together of spiritual communites."

Accompanied by a musical instrument called a sither, Watts begins with soothing tones to coax his class to relax every muscle in their bodies, from the toes to the scalp. The co-op members lie in a traditional yoga relaxation posture—flat on the back, arms at side, palms up, feet turned out. For the next three hours Watts leads them through a variety of yoga exercises (poses) involving balance, strength, flexibility and stability.

According to Watts, yoga can remedy a myriad of ills, from improving posture and increasing blood circulation to relieving backache and curing insomnia. Watts himself started practicing yoga to relieve the strain and strengthen the muscles of a bad back. Eight years later, he is now flexible enough to bend and manipulate his body into numerous yoga postures.

One of the keys to yoga, according to Watts, is to "keep the body in balance." For every posture stretching the back there must be a movement stretching

Tenant issue tops on SAC tonight

A follow-up report on the controversy involving the manager of Kris-Kar Apartments and former tenants over the withholding of $100 security deposits is on the agenda for the Student Affairs Council meeting tonight.

Roland Hill, director of Legal Aid, will discuss the results of a meeting between himself, Peter Kadel, and a member of the city Human Relations Commission. The SAC meeting gets underway at 7:15 in Rm. 230 of the University Union.

The meeting tonight will consist of reports from various committees.

It was announced earlier that ASI Pres. Scott Plotkin was recently elected chairman of the California State University and Colleges Student President Association (CSUCSPA).

84-unit housing proposal passed

City council okays construction site on Santa Rosa Street, 3-2

by CONNIE PITTS

The San Luis Obispo City Council gave a nod of approval to the construction of more student housing Monday night. The council passed a proposal to permit the construction of an 84-unit student housing, at 300 North Santa Rosa Street, by a 3-2 vote.

Councilmen Keith Gurnee and Myron Graham opposed the proposal, while their fellow councilmen, Mayor Kenneth Schwartz, Jesse Norris and John C. Brown approved it.

Gurnee and Graham voiced strong objection to the proposal because the location of the student housing complex would overburden a main water line. The water line which runs underneath Sierra Vista Hospital, 1010 Murray Street, also would run underneath the housing complex.

"The water line has a theoretical capacity of 0.31 million gallons of water per day," said Dave Romero, city engineer. "Yet, the water flow is at twice the capacity—0.63 million gallons per day."

Romero said since the water line was already overburdened, but still could hold more water, "the housing project could be added and the water line could run without difficulty."

W-2's ready

Statement of earnings (w-2 forms) for all university employees are now available from the payroll services. Those for state staff and faculty will be mailed within the next few days.

Pick up for student employees in the Administration Building Rm. 108 for state payroll and in University Union, Rm. 212 for foundation payroll employees.

Gurnee said, "Now we are consciously overloading our facilities and who is going to pay for them? I don't think the taxpayers should have to pay. I think it's time that those who are causing city expansion should pay for it."

Gurnee could not be convinced that the water line was not dangerously threatened by the housing complex. Nor could he convince the other three councilmen that he was justified in opposing the proposal.

Brown said he saw no problem in the proposal since "the line already is overloaded and has been so for many years."

Irony presided over the council when Norris made a comment which would have been typical of Gurnee, the councilman who acts for the student interest.

Norris said, "I see a critical need for student housing. We know this line will accommodate a larger community. I think it's only reasonable to accept the proposal."

Mayor Schwartz finalized the comments by saying, "The evidence presented to us tonight is that the theoretical capacity is exceeded, but nothing has happened yet to create a problem. We'll just have to make a common sense judgement on this proposal."

The approval of the proposal will allow Warren Doksal, the contractor requesting the building permit, to break ground for his project.

The passage of the proposal may violate the density prescription in the city's general plan, as Gurnee suggested. But, at least the problem of student housing shortage will be lessened.

News at a glance

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The inflation rate slowed in December but 1974 consumer prices climbed an overall 12.2 per cent, their third biggest jump in modern U.S. history the Labor Department reported Tuesday.

The year-end report prompted a warning from Treasury Secretary William Simon that the "unacceptable" inflation rate would "take years" to bring down.

It also presents more problems for the administration in dealing with the 1975 economy because of upcoming cost-of-living pay hikes for millions of wage earners and retirees based on 1974 inflation.

With the exception of 1918 and 1946—when the nation's economy staggered to shake off the effects of World Wars I and II—last year's jump was the largest since records were started in 1913, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Transportation Department announced today it has filed two lawsuits totaling $800,000 against General Motors because of the auto firm's refusal to notify owners of safety-related defects in more than 800,000 cars.

The suits filed in U.S. District Court here seek injunctions forcing GM to notify owners of the some Chevrolets, Buicks and Cadillacs made between 1968 to 1970 of problems which could result in fires or other accidents.

Each of the suits, filed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, asks civil penalties against GM in the amount of $400,000.

The NHTSA said the world's largest auto maker had refused to issue owner notifications of the alleged defects, which could cause "an unreasonable risk of accidents, deaths and injuries."

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Federal Energy Administration said today crude oil imports by the United States in 1974 hit record levels despite the Arab embargo during the early months of the year.

Crude imports in 1974 were 3,485,000 barrels daily, up about 7 per cent from 1973 levels.

The FEA noted, however, that the 7 per cent gain was down sharply from the average annual increase of 35 per cent in the previous three years.

The fuel crunch in the early months of 1974 took its toll on imports of refined products and residual fuel oil. Imports of refined products, which gained at an average rate of 13 per cent for the last three years, declined 13 per cent from 1973 levels.

The U.S. energy crisis and the government's campaign to focus on conservation lowered the demand in 1974.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court ruled 6-1 Tuesday that women as a class may not be excluded from jury lists.

The opinion by Justice Byron R. White said that if excluding women or granting them an automatic exemption results in a jury pool that is almost all male, a criminal defendant would be denied the constitutional right to an impartial jury.

Louisiana has now changed its procedure. But at the time of the Taylor conviction, women were excluded from jury duty unless they stated in writing a desire to serve. According to statistics supplied the court by the Center for Constitutional Rights in New York, automatic excuses for women are provided in Missouri, New York, Alabama and Tennessee. Georgia excuses "any woman, teacher or principal."

What is the time?

When I left home for my early morning class today, it was 7:50. I got to class at 3:00. By the time I left political science for English, I had either been in class 12 hours or not at all—it was STILL 3:00.

When I arrived in English, it was 9:15. And when I walked into journalism an hour later, it was nearing 6:30.

Making the hands of a clock point to the correct time seems to be such a simple efficiency—yet rarely, if ever, can the clocks on this campus be trusted to tell the truth.

It may be a minor frustration, but it is a frustration nevertheless, for faculty as well as students.

The specialized sport of clock-watching is in danger of becoming extinct, as is the possibility of getting to class on time.

Profs certainly are not to be blamed for pacing their lectures along with the classroom clock.

but hassles develop when the hands are only five or 10 minutes off. Unexpectedly a teacher may find the clock-tower wildly protesting in the middle of a key point and students are left with seven minutes to dash from the OH unit to the Music Building.

Up to this point, it seems that maintenance considers the possible solution to be a feat of such immense proportions that its only answer is to be ignored.

Yet a maintenance check of the clocks on this campus, even if it has to be spread over several days, is not such a monstrous task. There are an estimated 300 clocks at this school, not including those in the University Union and Administration Building. Certainly it isn't asking too much of maintenance to put all of Cal Poly on official Pacific Standard Time. It would be a timely end to a frustrating issue.

'75 tabbed as women's year

A joint resolution has been introduced to the State Legislature by Assemblyman Howard Berman (D-Sherman Oaks) proclaiming 1975 California Women's Year in conjunction with a similar proclamation by the United Nations.

The resolution also commemorates the California Commission on the Status of Women for its ten years of work on behalf of the women of California to enable them their full participation in society.

The Commission, established by the Legislature during the term of Governor Edmund G. Brown in October 1965 as an advisory commission, is charged with the responsibility for recommendations which will enable women to achieve their maximum potential.

The resolution also encourages other state legislatures to join with California in a speedy ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Those women from Crandall

Last year at this time the Mustang Daily ran a two part story on the deficiencies in the women's physical education and athletic programs. One year later, the women are still operating out of antiquated Crandall Gymnasium with a short staff and trying to run an athletic program for the women students on a budget that is less than four percent of the men's.

So what has changed?

Mainly, and most importantly, the attitude of the women from Crandall has grown into firm, unwavering resolve. Bolstered by Title IX of the education code, barring discriminatory practices in federally funded institutions, they have formed the Stick-It-To-'Em Committee, and have drawn the battle lines in three traditional areas of inequality — facilities, staffing and budgeting for athletic programming.

This year the athletic budget is $7,312 for the six intercollegiate sports offered to women, compared to some $180,000 for the twelve sports for men. The ASI Finance Committee has again asked all groups to keep budgetary increases to five percent, so the women have prepared two budgets.

One contains the five percent increase and the other is what the women would need to offer a "more efficient and effective program." It asks for $37,027.70.

Eyebrows will be raised when it is presented at budgetary hearings. Yet compared to the wealth of the men's program, it will not achieve parity if approved.

On the facilities front, state plans for a completely new women's gym were scrapped and replaced by a projected renovation of the existing building. The women at Crandall will believe the improvements when they see them.

An additional crumb has been thrown to the women in the form of a locker section in the Physical Education Building. They have been unable to get much out of the big gym because no women's dressing section was planned or built into it.

But the Stick-It-To-'Em Committee says that the proposal is inadequate for the needs of the women on this campus. The new facility would accommodate about 32 women.

Says the Committee, "Now that Title IX has come along, it appears that a small, inadequate women's locker room is going to be constructed for the sole purpose of satisfying the law."

While the new locker room will satisfy neither the needs of women students nor the intent of the law, they say that they will accept it as a temporary solution to the problem.

School administrators are trying, they say, to come up with a cheap solution to a problem that defies such an approach. An adequate locker room would have to accommodate 80 students at one time.

Staffing of the Women's PE Dept. has long been a point of contention. There were 779 students, including men, enrolled in Fall Quarter Women's PE classes and there are 222 women PE majors all handled by eight full-time faculty members. The Men's PE Dept. enjoys 28 staff positions and there are only six (that's right - 6) more men than women PE majors.

The women have no suggestions as to how the administration should handle the staffing shortage, but they feel that 17 positions should be adequate. The administrators might remember affirmative action. They could restaff the PE Dept. and bring up the sad faculty male-female ratio at the same time.

The women from Crandall don't want $180,000 for the athletics, they don't want 28 faculty positions and they don't want a huge new gymnasium. The law of the United States is behind the proposals that they do make, however, and those who review those requests would do well to keep Title IX in mind.

Class in yoga

the opposite direction, he says, and for every stretch to the right there must be a matching stretch to the left.

In addition to the co-op, Watts instructs a Hatha yoga class for credit in the Physical Education Dept. on Friday mornings. "In Hindu," Watts said, "Ha' controls the physical being and 'Tha' controls the mental being to develop the mind to control the body."

Hatha yoga is an ancient method of bringing physical and mental perfection through an organized pattern of exercise. By reaching this level of fitness and control, the body and mind can achieve a calm state of meditation and contemplation. Hatha yoga helps reach this state through a system of exercises, breathing patterns and relaxation techniques developed thousands of years ago.

According to Watts, Hatha yoga is the most basic form of reaching perfection and prepares the mind and body for the six higher forms. "In the co-op, we're bringing all seven types together to reach Raja, the ultimate form which combines the others to reach a state of oneness with the self."

In addition to Watt's class, Hatha yoga is offered in a Monday and Wednesday class taught by Sonja Murray of the Women's P.E. Dept. But the two-hour weekly session barely scratches the surface, Watts says, if one is truly to benefit from yoga. There are a number of places around San Luis Obispo that offer yoga instruction at longer stretches, which he recommends. Mandala School has an eight-lesson class open for $80; the San Luis Obispo Adult Education program provides Tuesday and Wednesday evening yoga classes; Cuesta College offers a class via TV at 6 and 8:30 a.m. on Channels 7 and 3; and a private instructor in Morro Bay gives 30 lessons for a $15 fee.

Watts, who hopes to become a spiritual healer, urges anyone interested to join the co-op. He came to San Luis Obispo this year, he says, "to raise the consciousness of this area by spreading yoga in the community."

Whaling stories

The whales are migrating to Mexico, and whale-watchers are reacting in violent ways.

Although dedicated, (they have to be to get up at 6:30 on Saturday morning), the whale-watchers had trouble holding in their excitement.

The big fish, (the whales that is), can be seen off the coast on their way to Baja breeding grounds. For the next couple Saturdays the four-hour boat excursion will take its toll on some people, but the boat ride is half the fun...or is it?

Cast members rehearse for "An Enemy of the People," to be presented here in February.

21-member cast rehearses play

"Slow down and project your voice," said Dr. Mike Malkin when a scene was stopped for blocking corrections (instructions on stage position). Rehearsals for "An Enemy of the People" started last week at the Cal Poly Little Theatre.

The Norwegian play written in 1882 by Henry Gibson was rewritten and modernized by Arthur Miller. It will be presented by a 21-member cast, including two faculty members, Feb. 20, 21, and 22, in the Little Theatre.

The play is centered around Dr. Thomas Stockmann, played by drama veteran Pat Chew, who returns to his home town to practice medicine. He discovers miraculous health streams outside of town, but pollution overtakes these healing waters. Dr. Stockmann becomes a hated figure when the citizens oppose him on an issue to allot money to clean up the waters.

Chew said this was the most important part he wanted to play this year. "It is a dynamic role. I guess I have a disease when it comes to drama," he said.

Practice began with exercises to loosen the actor's muscles, and later concentrated on their deliverance of lines and blocking movements.

"The players should switch with the wind," said Malkin, as he indicated sweeping gestures across the stage. "The cast must learn to identify with each other and with the stage settings," he added.

Malkin said he chose "An Enemy of the People" because it is a good play and he had planned to produce it at Indiana University of Pennsylvania where he taught last year.

Marsha Vandervilt is making all the costumes for her senior project. The costumes were designed during Fall Quarter and their construction began after the December casting.

The cast practices four hours daily but stage manager Bob Norris, senior Liberal Studies major, said he must work on the play 38 hours a week.

It Sounds Incredible

BUT EVELYN WOOD GRADUATES CAN READ

THE EXORCIST IN 58 MINUTES

At That Speed, The 403 Pages Come Across With More Impact Than The Movie.

You can do it, too. So far over 550,000 other people have done it. People who have different jobs, different IQs, different interests, different educations have completed the course. Our graduates are people from all walks of life. These people have all taken a course developed by Evelyn Wood, a prominent educator. Practically all of them at least tripled their reading speed with equal or better comprehension. Most have increased it even more.

Think for a moment what that means. All of them—even the slowest—now read an average novel in less than two hours. They read an entire issue of Time or Newsweek in 38 minutes. They don't skip or skim. They read every word. They use no machines. Instead, they let the material they're reading determine how fast they read. And mark this well: they actually understand more, remember more, and enjoy more than when they read slowly. That's right! They understand more. They remember more. They enjoy more. You can do the same thing—the place to learn more about it is at a free speed reading lesson.

This is the same course President Kennedy had his Joint Chiefs of Staff take. The staff of President Nixon completed this course in June 1970. The same one Senators and Congressmen have taken.

Come to a Mini-Lesson and find out. It is free to you and you will leave with a better understanding of why it works. One thing that might bother you about your reading speed is that someone might find out how slow it is. The instructors at the Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics Free Speed Reading lesson will let you keep your secret. It's true we practice the first step to improved reading at a Mini-Lesson and we will increase your reading speed on the spot, but the results will remain your secret. Plan to attend a free Mini-Lesson and learn that it is possible to read 3-4-5 times faster, with comparable comprehension.

Ag seminar for alumni is planned

"Production Inputs" will be the theme of the Agricultural Management Alumni Seminar to be held Friday and Saturday.

Dr. Edgar Hyer, head of Cal Poly's Agricultural Management Department, says about 100 alumni of the farm management and agricultural business management majors offered by the department will attend.

The seminar, sponsored by the department, will be held in Chumash Auditorium of the Julian A. McPhee University Union beginning at 9 a.m. on Friday.

Dr. Robert E. Kennedy, president of Cal Poly, will speak at the luncheon meeting on Friday, Jan. 24, and Dr. John West, associate dean of the university's School of Agriculture and Natural Resources, will speak at the luncheon meeting on Saturday, Jan. 25.

Aero student joins patrol

An aeronautical engineering student here has been appointed commander of the Five Cities Flight of the Civil Air Patrol.

Lt. David Anholm, announced Lt. Col. Louis H. Powell, Group 11 Commander, has been active in CAP since 1966. He began as a cadet when he was 13 and in 1970 attended the Manned Space Orientation Course in Houston, Texas.

Anholm was awarded the Meritorious Service Award for his assistance during an airplane crash here.

He was appointed executive officer of the Five Cities Flight in 1973. Anholm attended the Pacific Region Staff College, earned his Observer's Wings and is a qualified Mission Search and Rescue observer, Ground Team member and radio operator. He also has completed the California Office of Emergency Services Peacetime Radiation Incident Training Course.

Rules of the road

Cyclists too, must follow these rules to keep roads safe

by DAVID RICH

The new quarter has brought another round in the battle for top honors in the bicyclists' all out war against the pedestrian and motor vehicle.

One can't help but think the average Cal Poly bicyclist tries to break the sound barrier in order to get to class with no regard to pedestrian traffic. In doing so, he usually cruises through stop signs or tries to take turns at 30 mph.

According to George Cockriel, chief of the university police and fire departments here, bicyclists that will abide by the state bicycle laws can avoid unnecessary skinned shins and ruined bicycles. They'll also keep from incurring injuries to pedestrians.

Bicyclists perhaps should be praised for turning to another vehicle of transportation other than the car, but they should ride at safe speeds in getting to their destinations.

One law which students do not seem to be aware of is the parking regulations concerning bicycles on this campus. Bicycles must be parked in provided racks and not on lawn areas, stairways or inside of campus buildings.

A service many Cal Poly students do not know about is the free registration of their bicycle by the university police department. Unlike the fee required by the city to register a bike, university police will register a student's bike at no cost to the student. Registration is not mandatory but is helpful in the event a bicycle is stolen. If a Student's bicycle does not have an identifying mark or frame registration number, the police department will engrave a number on his bicycle at no cost to the student.

There is a new law concerning equipment regulations for bicycle owners and sellers. Bicycles must be equipped with department approved white or yellow reflectors on each peddle visible from the front and rear of the bicycle, white reflex reflectors must be on the front of the bicycle and a red reflex reflector must be on the rear of the bicycle.

It is also required to have a white or yellow reflector on each side forward of the center of the bicycle and a white or red reflector on each side to the rear of the center of the bicycle.

Bicycles with reflectorized tires on the front and rear do not need to be equipped with side reflex reflectors. Reflectorized tires or reflectors on the front, sides or rear of the bicycle must be visible for a distance of 500 feet when directly in front of lawful lower beams of a motor vehicle.

Queen contests

The Poly Royal Executive Board and representatives of campus student organizations will select the 1975 Poly Royal Queen and her court on Wednesday, Feb. 12 at 7:30 p.m. in Rm. 207 of the University Union.

Campus organizations wishing to sponsor a queen candidate may obtain application forms at the Poly Royal Desk in the Activities Planning Center of the University Union. Completed forms must be returned to ASI box 19 by noon on Wednesday, Jan. 29.

Each candidate is required to have an overall grade-point average of at least 2.30 and must be enrolled with 12 or more units this quarter. She must have attained junior or senior standing and have completed a minimum of 45 units at Cal Poly.

Candidates will be judged on participation in college related activities, personality and availability in terms of participation in Poly Royal activities.

The Poly Royal General Board, which screens all queen candidates and checks eligibility requirements, is seeking a coed with enthusiasm and the desire to represent Cal Poly and Poly Royal through statewide appearances, visits to local television and radio stations, and participation in opening ceremonies for the Poly Royal weekend.

For additional information, contact John Barry at 543-0883.

The Miss San Luis Obispo County Pageant, an official preliminary to the Miss California Pageant, will be held Saturday, March 23 in the Cal Poly theater.

"It is not a beauty pageant; it is a scholarship pageant," said David Garth, executive manager of the San Luis Obispo Chamber of Commerce. "We are looking for a girl who is talented and pretty...the all around woman."

Garth added that 50 per cent of the pageant judging is based on talent, personality and poise.

The contest judges are certified by the Miss California Pageant and are from out of the area. "It will be conducted as if it were a small Miss California Pageant," Garth said. "Any girl who gets involved will be proud."

Pageant entrants must be between 18 and 28 years old, single and never married. They also must attend a college or university or be the student of a private teacher.

Garth said that the goal of the local pageant is to award a $500 scholarship to the pageant's first place winner and to award lesser scholarships to the second and third place winners.

The winner of the Miss San Luis Obispo County Pageant will go on to the Miss California Pageant in Santa Cruz, Calif. and then, perhaps, to the Miss America Pageant in Atlanta Ga., Garth said.

Girls interested in competing in the Miss San Luis Obispo County Pageant should contact Garth at 543-1333, immediately.

The Miss San Luis Obispo County Pageant was abandoned 11 years ago, but has been revitalized through the joint efforts of the San Luis Jay Cees and the chambers of commerce throughout the county, Garth said.

The Miss California Pageant has matured during that 11 years, Garth added. Today, talent and brains are the major judging criteria.

Junior forward Cynthia Estrada sets a pick for one of her teammates to shoot over in women's basketball action against Cal State Hayward Saturday. The Mustangs beat Hayward 44-27.

Sunkist Invitational Meet good lesson for sprinters

The Sunkist Invitational Indoor Track and Field Meet at the Sports Arena in Los Angeles had many sensational performances Saturday night, but none by the three Cal Poly track men who competed.

"Dave Hamer failed to clear opening height in the open pole vault because of a technical problem that couldn't be adjusted by in time," said coach Steve Simmons.

Clancy Edwards placed third in the open 60 yd. dash, behind Steve Williams and Don Quarrie respectively. All three were clocked at 6.1.

Curtis Byrd placed third in his section of the Open 500 yd. dash, and finished sixth overall out of both sections of competition. Byrd was clocked in 57.5 behind winner Maxie Parks, who was timed in 55.4.

Both Edwards and Byrd set school records, Edwards in the 60 yd. dash and Byrd in the 500 yd. dash. Coach Simmons said, "for both Byrd and Edwards it was a learning experience competing against some of the fastest men in America, but I think because of the fact that two school indoor records were set, it is a good indication for our indoor season this year."

Mustang wrestlers Sports car club to hold suffer from 'losing' 'how to' meet

by BOB COX
The Mustangs need to see a veterinarian.

The Cal Poly wrestlers are suffering from a strange malady seldom heard of in this part of the territory. It's called losing.

The Mustangs lost their fifth dual match in their last six outings Monday night, as they were soundly thrashed by Iowa State University 34-10 in Ames, Iowa.

The last three weeks have been tough for Vaughn Hitchcock's crew. They were beaten by Navy 19-15, Oklahoma State 20-15, Oklahoma 27-6, recovered against Oregon State 28-12 and then were beaten by Oregon 23-14.

It was the sixth loss of the season evening their dual record and one of the worst defeats yet. They managed to win only two weight classes all night and drew at two others.

If it's any consolation Poly wasn't beaten by any slouch of a team. The Iowa Staters own a neat 8-1-3 record on the year, their only loss coming at the hands of Wisconsin. They tied Lehigh and Iowa.

It was a bad night all-around for Poly. At 118 Mark DiGirolamo lost for only the third time this year, 6-2 to Mike Land. Rodger Warner, at 150 and Sythell Thompson at 177, each with identical 10-1 records going into the match, were drawn for the first time this year.

The only Mustang wins were garnered by Rick Torres at 134 and Cliff Hatch at 167. Torres beat Randy Swayer 5-0 and Hatch beat Dave Powell 6-3.

The loss came on the first of a four match division swing. The Mustangs were in Cedar Falls to wrestle Northern Iowa Tuesday night, travel to Drake tonight and take on Nebraska-Omaha Thursday afternoon.

A "How To" seminar on the techniques of competing and winning at car rallye's will be held tonight.

The meeting, sponsored by the Cal Poly Sports Car Club will be held in Ag Engineering Rm. 123 7:30 p.m. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Club members will give tips on how to be successful in rallye's, what equipment is needed and what techniques are best. The Sports Car Club sponsors an average of one rallye a month.

Ford again rejects gas rationing idea

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ford again rejected gasoline rationing to end the energy crisis, saying it would have to be in effect at least five years to work and would limit every motorist to fewer than nine gallons per week.

Explaining why he chose to discourage energy consumption through increased costs and taxes, Ford told a news conference that all other alternatives were rejected after the "most comprehensive review in this nation's history."

He said he rejected both the idea of rationing and continuing consumption at current levels and would issue a presidential proclamation in a few days to impose higher fees on imported oil.

FBI director: records kept on lawmakers

WASHINGTON (UPI) Director Clarence Kelley acknowledged Tuesday the FBI keeps records of all information it obtains on congressmen, but said the files never were used to intimidate them or influence "judgment or actions."

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., said 11 months ago Kelley appeared before a congressional subcommittee and "completely denied...the existence of personal or political files on members of Congress."

As Kelley made his unprecedented public declaration about the FBI's data bank, Edwards summoned him to testify next week about reports the files delved into the most personal aspects of the lives of members of Congress.

JV team playing tough basketball

"With a little luck," says first-year junior varsity basketball coach Pinky Williams, "I think we can win all nine of our remaining games."

Currently, the JV's have a successful but deceiving 5-4 record. Williams believes it could very easily be 8-1, having lost four games by a total of six points.

The nine-man squad, according to Williams, is playing good team basketball. "I don't have any one player who carries the team game after game," says the coach.

Among the consistent performers is team leader Bobby Nicholson, who scored 22 points last week in the first league game, a 15-point victory over UC Riverside. Others include Bob Fraiser, the team's defensive leader, and Bruce Herron, an excellent shooter the team goes to in a clutch.

The squad, says the former Cal Poly star, is well disciplined and composed of "very good shooters." However, he adds, "most of the guys are walk-ons straight out of high school, and they are still adjusting to college basketball." He believes three or four players will move up to the varsity next year.

With nine games remaining, including three league games, the JV team still has the tough half of the season facing it. Their next game is at home Thursday, Diver Mike McCullough appears to soar higher than the mountains in the background as he garners second place in the Mustang's 77-34 win over UCSB Saturday. Poly set three school records and the only event they failed to win was the diving.
